POLICY ON CODE OF ETHICS

Having a strong, ethical code of conduct is essential to build a culture of compliance throughout an institution. LIDS code of conduct is an excellent exercise to focus on how students and employees should behave at work and the standards they should uphold and how they should conduct themselves peers, staff, patients.

The code of conduct is an integral policy of the LENORA Institute of Dental Sciences. As dentists, we carry social responsibility and ethics is one of the most pivotal factors for delivering quality patient treatment with compassion and care. This is reflected in our college vision where we emphasize fostering the seed of good values and ethics, The Code of Conduct ties these ideals to professional behavior standards.

Our policy for code of conduct lays out the institution’s principles, standards, the moral and ethical values that students as well as employees are expected to follow.

1. Being Committed, disciplined and honest
2. Being compassionate to patients and delivering the best dental care.
3. They are taught to build proper communication skills towards their patients as well as peers.
4. Abiding by the principles of dental ethics- Autonomy, Beneficence, Nonmaleficence, justice

The students and staff are directed to follow the rules and regulations given by the Committee of Code of Conduct. The students and staff are periodically sensitized about their roles and responsibilities.

Several committees in LIDS actively monitor the Code of Conduct – the Ragging Committee, Students Grievance Redressal Committee, Internal Complaints Committee, and Mentor-Mentee play a vital role in addressing any breach in the code of conduct.
